Safe Home For The Holidays Electrical Inspection

May your holidays be bright – but not shocking. The holidays are the most stressful time for your home's electrical system. According to the U.S. Fire Administration, December is the most dangerous month for electrical fires. There's no better time than right now to assure a safe home for the holidays.

We'll make sure your home can handle the holiday load with a thorough electrical safety inspection. We might even uncover some efficiencies to lower your electric bill.
